LORENA CANALS X SMALLABLE NOMAD COLLECTION

Lorena Canals and Smallable have come together to create a home textile collection inspired by the rugs of nomadic tribes.

Lorena Canals and Cécile Roederer both share a passion for design and travel. They are both adventurers, constantly seeking new horizons in every sense of the word. Together, these two creative minds have collaborated on a collection that reflects their shared vision with a range of unique pieces that are rooted in artisanship and sustainability.

Cécile and Lorena have sourced a lot of their inspiration for this collection from nomadic tribes. In these communities, rugs act as an easy way to provide comfort in a temporary settlement. What's more, they are constantly being recycled and reused in every part of the home, from the floors to the ceilings, doors, windows, clothing, sofas, bags and beds.

This lifestyle is one based on natural resources, on a need to travel and on a strong sense of community. And it's with these three ideas in mind that Cécile and Lorena imagined their joint collection. By embracing the best of nature's gifts, the collection is able to evoke a feeling of warmth, escapism and Mother Earth inside your home.

WOOLABLE

by Lorena Canals® x SMALLABLE

Nomads use recycled, leftover yarn to finish off their designs with eye-catching details. In a similar way, for this collaboration we have used contrasting colours of wool yarn to finish off the designs, using a palette of natural, earthy hues. These subtle shades are achieved with melange yarns that use interesting colour combinations to create soft nuances. In this wool collection, Lorena and Cécile wanted to reflect the way in which nomads make use of several rugs and sew them together. This technique creates charming, handcrafted pieces with uneven fringes, irregular shapes and mixed patterns. In this way, each design becomes a unique masterpiece that is developed using the materials available at any given moment.

WOOLABLE NOMAD SUMAK RUG
EARTHY HUES FOR AN IKAT-INSPIRED RUG

Inspired by the typical Ikat pattern found in Gelim rugs, the Sumak rug plays with contrasting shades of mixed yarns. It comes in two different colour versions – one in Terracotta (Cinnamon, Natural and Walnut) and the other in Seashell. The edges are finished with fringes and a small row of mini-tassels. The design features a zig-zagging pattern that runs down the centre and gives the appearance of being scratched with irregular horizontal stripes, some finished with mini-tassels that stick out at the sides.

WOOLABLE NOMAD ZAGROS RUG
A MONOCHROMATIC RUG MADE FOR SPECIAL OCCASIONS

Who said rugs couldn't be used as clothing? This rug was inspired by a photo of a nomad wedding that took place in Zagros – land of the Lors – where men were dressed in capes made of sewn-together rugs. This design is inspired by those capes and is made with a natural coloured wool pile base and contrasting details in Charcoal or Sandstone that imitate the typical Ikat pattern found in Gelim rugs. The irregular borders simulate two pieces stitched together, and the edges are finished with short, uneven fringes.

WOOLABLE NOMAD SUF RUG AN IRREGULAR DESIGN IN NATURAL SHADES OF LAMBSWOOL

Lambswool is an essential material for nomad shepherd families. Many rugs found in these mountainous regions are made with undyed wool, also known as Suf, which creates interesting patterns as a result of the combination of wool fibres from different breeds of sheep. This Suf rug is made out of soft wool in a neutral colour palette. It comes in a lighter Natural version – that mixes shades of Natural, Seashell and Sandstone – and in a warmer Taupe coloured version. Both are outlined with an irregular fringed border in a matching shade.

NOMAD JAM FLOOR CUSHION STUFFED RUGS AS COMFY FLOOR CUSHIONS

In nomad homes, rugs are used to make throw cushions, sofas and even beds, by sewing them together and stuffing them with wool fibres. This is an easy way to provide comfort in a temporary settlement and has inspired the design of the Nomad Jam floor cushion. It is made with a cotton canvas base decorated with tufted short wool on the front side, bare canvas on the reverse and finished off with a fluffy long pile that outlines the cushion. It is available in two colour versions: Natural and Brown.

Named after a nomadic village of artisan women, the Jajim throw pillow is hand tufted in Natural coloured wool on the same cotton canvas base as the rugs. The front is decorated with three strips of tufted multi-coloured wool in a variety of shades, from earthy brown to terracotta.

These natural cotton, fuss-free, washable rugs are highly versatile, and their colours can be easily adapted to any style of décor. NOMAD ZABOL WASHABLE RUG A REVERSIBLE GUEST RUG

Taking inspiration from these guest rugs, the Zabol rug is reversible, featuring a short Natural colour cotton pile on the front and Brown cotton pile on its reverse side. Both sides are decorated with two longer pile, multi-coloured strips and finished with handmade braids that stick out from the sides and at the corners.
